

Community Food Bank Expands Hours in Tucson to Serve Increased Need New Thursday Afternoon Food Pickup

Thursdays look different now at the Community Food Bank in Tucson.

What used to be a five-hour food distribution has now expanded to ten hours, in a move to address the increased demand for food that has not slowed. Demand is up about 20 percent over this time last year. The new extended Thursday hours, starting at 8am and ending at 6pm, are designed to give people more flexibility around their work or school schedules.

For people like Carmen, it offers a choice that wasn't there before. "I get off work at 2:30," she says. "Now I can get here before you close."

Saturday morning hours are also being offered every fourth Saturday of the month, with the Food Bank open from 9am – Noon. The move opens up new shifts for volunteers to help answer the need.

NEW FOOD DISTRIBUTION HOURS AT 3003 S. COUNTRY CLUB: -

Grapes at our Nuestra Tierra Learning Garden ripened in June, and we got a sweet taste of them... before the birds did! Dear Friends and Neighbors,

We're getting there!

Summer in Southern Arizona tests us all, but as we continue to move through August we know we're taking more steps toward putting summer heat behind us.

The extreme heat has not affected demand for food. We have seen steady lines this summer, and our new extended, more flexible hours at our Country Club location are designed to address that.

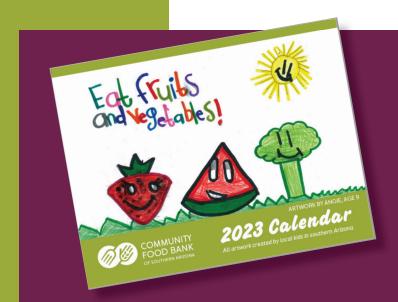

Summer always brings a challenge to fill our volunteer slots. People head out of town, go on vacation, or take a well-deserved break. Yet our assembly line to pack bags and boxes of emergency food runs five days a week in Tucson. If you have picked up a few volunteer shifts this summer helping in production, or in any capacity, thank you! We can't do this work without you.

If you're interested in joining our work, you can easily sign up at volunteer.communityfoodbank.org or email us at volunteer@communityfoodbank.org.

We are constantly grateful for the time and treasure you share. Every day we see how our name – Community Food Bank – so accurately reflects a giving and caring community.

Stamp Out Hunger? Yes, we "can".

How do 1600 cans of tuna become a "mini" Lego astronaut figure? Only in Canstruction!

Many thanks to our Canstruction teams from Swaim and Associates, Lloyd Construction, and Tucson Electric Power. They created colossal space-themed Cansculptures and donated all the canned food to make them! It came to more than 8,000 pounds, along with an amazing display of creativity and design. We can't wait until next year!

And thank you to all who donated and left food by their mailbox for this year's Stamp Out Hunger Food Drive in May. Take a look at this family who started volunteering back in 2015. That's when Nicole asked her sons to volunteer with her as a Mother's Day gift.

Now it's an ongoing family tradition, and she says it's her plan to "do this every year until I can't physically manage it anymore."

A Day at Caridad Community Kitchen, where more than 550,000 meals are prepared in a year.

This kitchen buzzes with activity and the smell of good food! See what's going on in an average weekday:

Grab n Go meals get packed early by volunteers. They'll include things like a sandwich, granola bar, an orange, and some cheese. These go out, along with bottled water, every afternoon to anyone free of charge.

In another part of the kitchen, culinary students portion out spinach, carrots and golden raisins for senior meals. The students complete an 11-week program of training in culinary skills, life skills, and an internship at a local restaurant. The food they cook goes out to the community.

About 1400 senior meals get portioned. Today it's macaroni and cheese with chicken, and a side of braised cabbage. This is a true collaborative effort with our partners: the meals are prepared at Caridad, delivered by Meals on Wheels, and distributed through Pima Council on Aging, Catholic Community Services, Lutheran Social Services, and Interfaith Community Services.
